What could you do after studying this subject?

English Literature A Level is both exciting and challenging. It gives students the opportunity to pursue their own reading tastes and to experience a wide range of writing from Shakespeare to literature published after 2000. We encourage students to develop an informed personal response to what they have read, based on close analysis, independent thinking and class discussion. The A Level coursework provides the opportunity for students to develop their independent research and extended essay writing skills.

Subject specific entry requirements:

Grade B or a 5 in English

Suggested reading material:

'Othello' by William Shakespeare

'Death of a Salesman' by Arthur Miller (Drama)
